ECOWEEK NEWS 05.13

MAKING A DIFFERENCE: ONE (more) WORKSHOP AT A TIME

On Monday May 13, ECOWEEK took place for the first time in Copenhagen, Denmark. ECOWEEK 2013 New Nordic Living opened with great success and with the presence of over 300 participants from around the world. The international conference ECOWEEK 2013 New Nordic Living in Copenhagen, an initiative of NGO ECOWEEK and KEA Copenhagen School of Design and Technology is the first to take place in Scandinavia. The international conference is taking place with the cooperation and support of the Municipality of Copenhagen, with 27 'green' design workshops that address real problems in the city. Some of the workshop proposals may be further developed, adopted by the city and some may be implemented.

The conference was greeted by the Mayor of the Technical and Environmental Administration of Copenhagen Ayef Baykal, the rector of KEA Ingo Osterskov, and the founding chairman of ECOWEEK Architect and Environmental Consultant Elias Messinas. The conference was moderated by Jesper Pagh, architect and editor of the Danish Architectural Press, and included lectures by Michael Asgaard Andersen who introduced the New Nordic Living concept from the exhibition in Louiziana Museum of Denmark, and architect Kristian Villadsen associate architect at Gehl Architects. The opening of the conference included screening of the new film by director Andreas Mol Dalsgaard on the research and work of Danish architect Jan Gehl entitled 'The Human Scale'.

During the week ECOWEEK 2013 New Nordic Living will also host lectures by the Minister of Education of Denmark Morten Ostergaard and the Commissioner for Climate Change Connie Hedegaard.

ECOWEEK 2013 New Nordic Living workshops in Copenhagen are attended by architects, designers, engineers, landscape architects and students from Denmark, Greece, Israel, Brazil, Canada, Poland, Italy, Sweden, China, England, Germany and Serbia. ## ECOWEEK GREENHOUSE in Israel: 4 real projects on the way to implementation

The ECOWEEK GREENHOUSE in collaboration with the HIT - Holon Institute of Technology, developed a unique course that combines academia and real practice, sustainable design and community interventions. Thanks to the collaboration between ECOWEEK, HIT, the Municipality of Holon, the Municipality of Bat Yam, Terminal Center for entrepreneurship and design, and the Out of the Box NGO, four projects have been developed during the last semester by 3rd and 4th year design students - interior design, industrial design and communication design - including the scottish school 'Tabeetha' in Old Jaffa, 'Golda' school in Holon, the 'Lazarus' Community Center in the Jessie Cohen neighborhood of Holon, and a traffic roundabout in the industrial area of Bat Yam. The projects will be presented on May 28 at HIT and their implementation will take place in early July [\[more\]](#)
